

About Marta

BORN IN MADRID, SPAIN, Marta came to the U.S. at age 5 landing, like many immigrants, in New York. She watched her parents work hard from sunup to sundown to follow their American dream. After attending UCLA and majoring in Spanish and Linguistics, Marta decided to live her own American dream by owning her own business. When Marta started her family, she realized how important it was to have competent domestic help to assist. This is how Domestic Connections Agency started in 1989.

As her business grew, she became an expert in her field and wrote her first book in 2006 primarily directed to the household employer entitled "Help! How to Find Hire Train and Maintain Your Household Help!" winning the Mom's Choice Award for 2009.

Her latest Book / DVD set "The Professional Housekeeper" published in 2010 also won the Mom's Choice Award for 2011. This was developed to train any homemaker and anyone who chooses a career as a domestic in how to clean, launder clothes, organize, table set, serve, arrange flowers, make basic meals and be comfortable in the kitchen, and more.

Marta has been asked to discuss various issues that affect domestic personnel on national and regional radio talk shows. In addition, she gives workshops at educational centers for parents to train others on hiring a Housekeeper and Nanny and other related subjects. Marta currently runs training seminars for household workers to help them become professionals in the private service industry.
